DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. The examiner acknowledges the preliminary amendment filed on 7/21/2006. The action is maintained and reproduced below for applicant's convenience.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

2. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1-44 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. The claims as written appear to recite a method, computer program medium, and device for performing permutations of an unknown entity for obtaining values. As such it appears, to be doing something, such as data or non-numerical manipulation, without specifying a tangible result. As such it lacks any identifiable or asserted utility. The claimed invention lacks patentable appears to embody a scientific principal, divorce form any tangible structure to perform a utility within one of the statutory classes.

3. Claims 1-44 provides for the use of manipulation of data, but, since the claim does not set forth any steps involved in the method/process, it is unclear what method/process applicant is intending to encompass. A claim is indefinite where it merely recites a use without any active, positive steps delimiting how this use is actually practiced.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claims 1-44 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.
5. Claims 1-44 provides for the use of manipulation of data, but, since the claim does not set forth any steps involved in the method/process, it is unclear what method/process applicant is intending to encompass. A claim is indefinite where it merely recites a use without any active, positive steps delimiting how this use is actually practiced.

Claims 1-44 appears to be vague and indefinite, since it fails to set forth an application or field of use or tangible results of its data manipulations. As such it is unclear what exactly applicant is claiming. This may be an algorithm or some other natural occurring process. Clarification and correction is required.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments filed 7/21/2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.
7. In response to applicant's argument that it has a practical utility, a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. Here applicant has a general-purpose computer that performs data manipulation for an undetermined purpose. As such it appears to be non-statutory

Conclusion

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
